

Contents

13	Foreword
15	Introduction
	A Glimpse of Glory
20	Chapter One
	Survival &amp; Revival: 1890 – 1897
23	The Phoenix Rises
23	Two trial streetcars “as full as it was possible for them to be”
25	Electric power a “new fangled notion”
28	Future brightness fades
30	Vancouver to New Westminster: a new link between two cities
31	Canada’s longest interurban line opens
38	The Competition: “The streets are blocked with wagons and cabs”
38	Stagecoaches: mired in mud
38	Ships: Fraser River steamship service
39	Trains: single fare a hefty dollar
40	Bicycles: same speed limit as a streetcar
41	Horse and carriage: only for the wealthy
42	Fairview Line: “It was a positive disgrace”
45	Business Districts Rely on Transit: “We beg for an extension of the car line”
49	Labour Scene: “40 cents for a day’s work”
52	Women on Transit: They provoked “a dickens of a row”
53	The Stanley Park Line: “A brewery at each end”
55	Safety Issues: Teamsters should “take great care not to leave horses on the street”
59	Freight: “Settlers’ effects carried free when accompanied by someone”

Authors' Note

Although this book focuses on Vancouver's early transit story, the subject within the broader historical significance of the period. The authors mention important landmarks and persons from the past.

64 Chapter TwoGrowth to Greatness: 1898 – 1903*67 From Woebegone to Award-Winner in Five Short Years

67 “Vancouver has benefited immensely . . . amply proved by the increased receipts of our Company”

71 Of wages and work: a union local forms

72 Consolidation brings greater security

73 B.C.-built cars a first

77 Dupont Street: “Gambling goes on promiscuously all over Vancouver”

82 The Interurban: “I presumed it would always be with us”

90 Chapter ThreeGlory!: 1904 – 1912*93 Vancouver: “Supreme and Peerless City of Canada”

93 Public transit “like something of a miracle”

94 Labour: “The street railway was a great provider of jobs”*101 Transit as a White Man’s World: “No Oriental labour employed”

101 Chinese labourers

104 Japanese labourers

106 Asian passengers on transit

107 Entertainment: “The elite used the trams extensively”

111 North Vancouver: “Whisked along the street at a good brisk speed”

114 All-Weather Service: “Waiting for connections in wet and cold weather is a great waste of our time”

120 Freight: “Transit customers served from the cradle to the grave”

122 Strawberry fields forever

122 Sockeye run on the rails

124 Milk and mail on the move

126 Real Estate: “A business street cannot exist without a carline”

132 Point Grey: Transit plans prove too grandiose for this former “wasteland”

134 Observation Car: “Party on wheels” gives sightseeing a twist

138 Stanley Park: “Improved aesthetics” or “lunch baskets and bottled beer”?

140 Accidents: “Lakeview disaster” city’s worst transit tragedy

143 “Juggernauts traverse our streets with no protection whatsoever”

149	Sporting Events: Avid fans take public transit to games
149	"Lacrosse specials": trains transported thousands to each game
154	Horse racing: fans ride world's first railway dome cars
156	Baseball: B.C. Electric defies the law to transport baseball fans
159	Special Events: "All traffic on the line halted" for royal visits
167	Robbers and Rogues Add Danger to the Ride: "He called me a vile name under his breath"
170	Outdoor Leisure: Passengers with feathers and fur ride in the baggage car
174	Chapter Four
	The Future Beckons: 1913 – 1915
177	Cars and Jitneys Around the Corner
177	"Rails-to-rubber" transformation awaits
181	Vancouver's Hobble Skirt Car: "It will prove one of the greatest enemies of the limousine and taxicab"
188	Transit Uniforms: "Gave a man an air of authority"
193	The Competition
193	Automobiles: "devil-wagons" provide new rides
194	Motor buses: new options discussed
195	Taxis: started in 1910
196	Jitneys: wild rides posed major threat
197	At Close Quarters: No chaperone required
198	Streetcars Deliver Bundles to Newsies: "We'd shout 'Extra, extra' with the war news"
205	Epilogue
	From Sleek to Obsolete to Repeat Performances
207	Bibliography
210	Appendix A Some Rolling Stock Facts and Figures
214	Appendix B Streetcar Service in Greater Vancouver, 1890 to 1915
218	Appendix C Interurban Service in Greater Vancouver, 1890 to 1915
220	Appendix D Plan Showing Interurban Transit Lines Vancouver &amp; District
221	Index